MK-Ultra Overthrows

I am slowly moved to strike but being so moved I strike quickly

In 13 Days, the “doctrinal shift” idea is basically this: puting nuclear-armed ballistic missiles close to your opponent (MRBMs/IRBMs) shrinks warning/decision time and makes “decapitation” (hitting command, leadership, bomber bases) feel more plausible than with ICBMs. Air strikes are at best a temporary solution. 20 Minsutes. The military recomends exist plan 316 be the follow up, military invasion to remove Castro.

What an SS-4 (R-12 “Dvina”, NATO: SS-4 Sandal) actually was

Key performance points (ballpark, because variants differed):

  Range: about 2,000–2,500 km

  Warhead: typically ~1 to 2.3 megatons

  Accuracy: often cited on the order of kilometers CEP (good enough for cities/area targets, not “pinpoint” counterforce by modern standards)

  Time of flight (Cuba → U.S.-East-Coast type ranges): commonly cited around ~12 minutes for an R-12-class shot

  During the Cuban Missile Crisis, U.S. government docs described SS-4 (1020 nautical mile) MRBMs deployed in western Cuba

So your “5 minutes” warning-time claim is too low for an SS-4 in most Cuba→Washington scenarios; think ~10–15 minutes flight time depending on trajectory and distance (and then subtract whatever time you lose to detection/confirmation/decision).

Also important: SS-4s weren’t “hair-trigger” the way later solid-fuel missiles were. They used storable liquid propellants, but readiness and launch prep could still be substantial depending on how they were being operated and alerted.

What could SS-4s do to England from Warsaw Pact territory?

England is well within SS-4 range from multiple Warsaw Pact basing areas:

  From East Germany / western Poland / Czechoslovakia, London and much of England are roughly ~900–1,500 km away (comfortably inside 2,000 km).

  That means an SS-4 force in Warsaw Pact territory could threaten:

  Major cities (London, Birmingham, Manchester, etc.)

  Key ports and industrial zones

  RAF air bases and some NATO command nodes (as “area” targets)

Warning time for the UK from a nearer MRBM shot would be shorter than an ICBM, but still typically on the order of ~10 minutes-ish for many medium-range profiles, not 5.

Bottom line: SS-4s were a core reason Western Europe felt acutely exposed in the early 1960s—they were built to hold European/NATO targets at risk at medium range.

What could SS-4s do to Australia from Indonesia?

Two big caveats up front:

Indonesia was not Warsaw Pact, and the USSR did not historically deploy SS-4s there the way it did in Cuba—so this is a hypothetical basing question.

  Range drives everything. At 2,000–2,500 km, SS-4s can reach northern and parts of western Australia, but not the southeast population belt.

Within reach (generally yes)

From plausible Indonesian basing points (e.g., Timor / Maluku / eastern Indonesia), an SS-4 could reach:

  Darwin (well within range from many eastern Indonesian locations; often under ~1,000–2,100 km in rough geography)

  Northwest WA (e.g., Kimberley region / Broome-area) comfortably within range

  Potentially other northern military facilities, airfields, and ports

Probably not within reach (generally no)

Even at the high end (~2,500 km), SS-4s would generally not reach:

  Perth (it's typically just beyond that from most Indonesian launch areas)

  Adelaide / Melbourne / Sydney / Brisbane (too far—these are thousands of km beyond SS-4 reach from Indonesia)

Bottom line: An SS-4 in Indonesia would be a serious threat to northern Australia (especially Darwin) and parts of the northwest, but it wouldn't be a "wipe out Australia" weapon because it can't reach the major southeast cities from there.

One more "doctrinal" nuance that matters

Forward-based MRBMs/IRBMs compress decision time, but they also have tradeoffs:

  They’re closer and faster, but

  They can be more vulnerable (to preemption, raids, air attack) than hardened ICBM fields, depending on basing mode and readiness.

That tension—short warning time vs survivability/escalation risk—is a big part of what the Cuban Missile Crisis dramatizes.

If you tell me which Warsaw Pact country you want to base from (e.g., East Germany vs Poland vs western USSR) and which Indonesian island (Timor vs Java vs Sulawesi), I can give you a tight “in-range/out-of-range” list for specific UK and Australian cities and key bases.

Alfred Ulmer began his career in intelligence as a major head of intelligence operations for the Navy during World War II. He then joined the Office of Strategic Services (OSS) in 1945 and oversaw operatives gathering information in Turkey, Egypt, Italy and Austria.

When the OSS was disbanded in 1945, Ulmer became head of the Strategic Services Unit (SSU) in Austria. There, Ulmer expanded his base of operations to include the whole Balkans area including such controversial places as Yugoslavia and Hungary. Although the SSU lacked the personnel to effectively carry out covert operations, Ulmer pushed for more money and was finally rewarded by a $150,000 annual budget. His glory at the SSU was short-lived, though, as the SSU was soon liquidated into the CIA by the new Central European Section chief, Richard Helms.

Ulmer was promoted to chief of the Far East division of the CIA's Directorate of Plans in 1955.[1] At his new position Ulmer coordinated the overthrow of the president of Indonesia (Sukarno) in 1957. The main reason behind the rebellion was to rid Indonesia of its growing Communist Party. Ulmer was criticized for the failure of the rebellion and its intended sequel. He worked in Athens from 1952 to 1955 and in Paris from 1958 to Greg Poulgrain: For those interested in the assassination of JFK, the untold story of Indonesia, gold, JFK, Allen Dulles, the CIA, and secret military coups.

Two of the most fascinating figures in history, John F. Kennedy, thirty-fifth president of the United States, and Allen Dulles, our nation’s longest-serving CIA director, often clashed over intelligence issues and national security. However, one such conflict has remained in the shadows until now. JFK vs. Allen Dulles: Battleground Indonesia takes reader to the vast archipelago 3350 miles wide where this secret showdown occurred.

In 1936, an Allen Dulles-established company discovered the world's largest gold deposit in remote Netherlands New Guinea. In 1962, President Kennedy intervened, and Netherlands New Guinea was added to President Sukarno's Indonesia. Neither Sukarno nor JFK was aware of the gold, since Dulles had not informed Kennedy.

Dulles planned a complicated and ruthless CIA regime-change strategy to seize control not only of Indonesia itself, but also of its vast resources, including the gold. This strategy included a push to start Malaysian Confrontation. Yet Kennedy's plan to visit Jakarta in early

Jen Moore 4th of July and the Deep State at Capitol Hill after hearings

Okay that's about all I could take of the crowd in the upcoming fireworks not don't do too well with fireworks in PTSD so you don't want to really be in a large crowd so I thought I'd just go walking you can see the beautiful capital in the capitol grounds gorgeous hot hot hot but gorgeous a lot of cop cars a lot of people walking but the crowd is enormous and I thought when the fireworks went off and the crowds started to dissipate it would be a nightmare to get out of there so I thought I would leave early I did hear some of John Stamos and her the national anthem and played that for you guys and you know that really is the patriotism of America and you saw it in the crowd I mean there were no people kneeling in that crowd tonight her people in red white and blue and children dressed up in red white and blue dresses and shorts and putting their hands on their hearts and servicemen and police officers so that was a wonderful view you stand right here in front of the capital of the United States of America and hopefully this next year will bring us more unified more together as the secrets of the deep state that are hidden buried underneath all these structures come out to the open for the American people to see and healing can begin and the whistleblowers can speak freely and the victims can speak freely and we as a country can heal red white blue purple yellow green whatever color whatever race whatever creed we as the American people can begin to heal and that is my hope for this year on this two hundred and forty second birthday of the United States (end of video)

[is there a way] in this country to stop this that those in power would abused their power in such a devastating systemic continuous way that people would live all of their childhoods experiencing some of these things and even young adulthood and then be terrorized for the rest of their lives to never speak about these absolute monster crimes so you know as much as you guys a lot of people don't want to hear about some of this stuff as you said this stuff is coming out and I know it is as well so it's it's part a the part that I play in it is some of my knowledge and experience in the past and understanding of some of the stuff that came into play regarding my whistle-blowing and as well as many other things that are attached to it I can't give real specifics just because it's just not safe enough we're going to have a meeting in a little bit and telling you my heart is that feels like it's been a ripped in two just hearing some of the stories that I've heard and so I'll be giving more information on that and like this is also my PTSD journey as well this is part of the reason this is part of my trapped truth as I said yesterday is knowing these things to be true and not being able to speak them out loud these things and many other things being silenced and so that silencing that pushing down of your personal experience whether you're a whistle-blower or victim or survivor a witness a lot of witnesses to that have been silenced especially by the government our government that ever want you to speak and you know threaten you and even worse things than that the power of that coming against you as an individual you as a child or the abuse of power is such a traumatic wounding and such a betrayal of all that you believe to be true and think who are the safe people and who aren't and we're trying to correct some of that now many of the whistle-blowers that I'm involved with are trying to correct that now to let the American people know that there are really good people that have tried for a long time to stop some of these very bad things and we become victims as well as we are silenced with threats in many other ways so that's kind of the update and we'll go on from here -Jen Moore

"What World is This?

"The world is, of course, nothing but our conception of it." - Anton Chekhov talking about misconceptions

A relevant quote from Seneca's Letters to Lucilius reads: "What is a kingdom? A trifle in the game of fortune. (Epistulae Morales ad Lucilium, Letter 62)

This reflects the Stoic perspective that worldly kingdoms and material power are insignificant compared to the eternal and rational nature of the universe. Seneca often urged his readers to focus not on external circumstances but on inner virtue and the alignment of one's soul with nature

Quis hic locus, Quae regio, Quae mundi plaga?

https://sanctummeum.wordpress.com/2017/05/10/quis-hic-locus-quae-regio-quae-mundi-plaga/

> Quis hic locus, Quae regio, Quae mundi plaga? “What place is this, what kingdom, what wounded world?”

The quotation is from TS Eliot’s poem “Marina“. But that itself is a quotation taken from an older work “Hercules Furens (The Mad Hercules)” by Seneca. In this Latin work, Seneca describes a hero coming back to a world that he is deeply estranged from (what modern-day would call PTSD perhaps!?).

In Eliot’s work, the quotation is just an introduction to signify a similar dislocation experienced by a Shakespearean character- Pericles. This king of Tyre has just recognised a young woman as his long-lost daughter. In that moment he experiences sadness at the years lost and the challenges he went through. Later the poem settles, like a boat reaching the quiet shores, into a place of recognition and comfort.

On the other hand, I find Seneca’s original quotation a much more savage and strong edict on the sense of disembodiment from our present. This is an interpretation I personally prefer, and so here we stop with the quote in full.

“Quis hic locus, Quae regio, Quae mundi plaga? Ubi sum? Sub ortu solis, an sub cardine glacialis ursae” (Hercules Furens, Seneca, Act 5, Line 1138)

“What place is this, what region, what shores of the world? Where am I? Under the rising sun or beneath the wheeling course of the frozen bear?“

I think I have this in concept but would like to check and gain refinement in the concept: Liminal zones and vaugness are concepts that go together, and boundries and clarity are concepts that go togther. That is true in the spacial sense, and in the temporal sense liminal zones my fluctuate their state and boundries last longer over time.

> You’re very close, and your intuition is solid. What you’re articulating is a well-established conceptual pairing that shows up across philosophy, anthropology, geography, and systems theory. I’ll refine it while keeping your core idea intact.
> 1. Core Pairings (You’re Right)
> Your pairings are conceptually aligned:

Liminality ↔ Vagueness / Ambiguity

  Boundaries ↔ Clarity / Definition

These are not arbitrary associations; they describe different modes of organization.

Refined framing:

  Liminal zones are regions of transition where categories are unstable.

  Boundaries are mechanisms of distinction that stabilize categories.

So yes—liminality and vagueness go together, and boundaries and clarity go together.

2. Spatial Sense (Well-Founded)

In space, this relationship is intuitive:

  A boundary (wall, border, edge) sharply separates A from B.

  A liminal zone (threshold, doorway, shoreline, borderland) is neither fully A nor fully B.

Spatially:

  Boundaries → discrete, thin, precise

  Liminal zones → extended, fuzzy, gradated

A doorway isn't just a line—it's a space of crossing. That spatial thickness is what produces vagueness.

3. Temporal Sense (Your Insight Is Strong Here)

Your temporal claim is particularly insightful:

“In the temporal sense liminal zones may fluctuate their state and boundaries last longer over time.”

This is broadly correct, and can be refined like this:

Temporal refinement:

  Boundaries are temporally stable → they persist, endure, and resist change.

  Liminal states are temporally unstable → they oscillate, fluctuate, or resolve.

Examples:

  Adolescence (liminal) → fluctuating identity

  Adulthood (bounded) → stabilized social role

  Crisis periods → ambiguous norms

  Established institutions → durable rules

So liminality is not just “in between” in space, but also in time—it is a process, not a condition.

4. Why Liminality Fluctuates

Liminal zones fluctuate because they are:

  Underdetermined (rules not fully specified)

  Context-sensitive (meaning shifts with perspective)

Transitional (they exist to be passed through)

Boundaries, by contrast, are:

  Overdetermined

  Enforced

  Reproduced over time

This is why boundaries feel clear and liminal zones feel uncertain.

5. One Important Nuance (Refinement)

There’s a subtle but important refinement:

Liminality is not the absence of boundaries — it is the coexistence of multiple boundary logics.

That’s why it feels vague.

Vagueness arises not from nothingness, but from overlap:

  Old boundary not fully gone

  New boundary not fully formed

So:

  Vagueness = boundary competition

  Clarity = boundary dominance

6. Condensed, Polished Statement (If You Want a Final Form)

Here’s a refined version of your idea that keeps your meaning but tightens it conceptually:

Liminal zones and vagueness are closely linked, just as boundaries and clarity are linked. Spatially, boundaries create sharp distinctions while liminal zones occupy extended transitional spaces. Temporally, boundaries tend to persist and stabilize over time, whereas liminal states are unstable and may fluctuate as systems transition from one configuration to another.

If you want, we can:

  Map this onto identity, politics, urban space, or cognitive categories

  Translate it into systems theory, phenomenology, or design language

  Or test edge cases where liminality becomes institutionalized (which complicates the model)

Just tell me where you’d like to push it next.

Very briefly:

→ ADD/ADHD affects attention, organization, and impulse control, so a person may seem careless, unreliable, or lazy even when they’re trying hard.

→ Dyslexia affects reading, writing, and processing speed, so a person may seem less intelligent or unprepared, despite normal or high intelligence.

→ Emotional difficulties (often caused or worsened by repeated failure and misunderstanding) can lead to anxiety, frustration, or withdrawal, which may look like overreaction, defensiveness, or lack of motivation.

Together, these conditions reinforce each other: struggles lead to mistakes → mistakes lead to criticism → criticism leads to emotional stress → stress worsens attention and learning.

As a result, others may judge the person by outcomes rather than effort, misperceiving neurological and emotional challenges as character flaws.

What Chlorpromazine is used for

  Schizophrenia and other psychotic disorders

  Severe agitation or mania

  Nausea and vomiting (especially when other treatments fail)

  Intractable hiccups

  Pre-operative sedation

  Sometimes severe anxiety (short-term use)

How it works

It mainly works by blocking dopamine (D_2) receptors in the brain. Excess dopamine activity is associated with psychotic symptoms such as hallucinations and delusions.

It also affects:

  Histamine receptors (can cause sedation)

  Alpha-adrenergic receptors (can lower blood pressure)

  Muscarinic receptors (can cause anticholinergic side effects)

Common side effects

Because it is an older antipsychotic, side effects are relatively frequent.

Common

  Drowsiness / sedation

  Dizziness

  Dry mouth

  Constipation

  Blurred vision

  Weight gain

Neurological (extrapyramidal symptoms)

  Muscle stiffness

  Tremor

  Restlessness (akathisia)

  Slowed movements

Serious (seek medical help)

  Tardive dyskinesia (involuntary movements)

  Neuroleptic malignant syndrome (fever, rigidity, confusion)

  Severe low blood pressure

  Heart rhythm disturbances

  Liver problems (cholestatic jaundice)

Important warnings

  Can cause significant sedation

  May worsen Parkinson’s disease

  Increases risk of falls, especially in older adults

  Not recommended for dementia-related psychosis due to increased mortality risk

  Avoid alcohol (adds to sedation)

Availability & names

CASE REPORT--CONT'D

D. Prognosis: The resolution of the depressive affect and suicidal drive should be expected as a result of the hospitalization. The degree of personality integration and ego function which may be achieved for the long term is hard to predict. We may say that with a good intensive working relationship in therapy and a successful relationship to the hospital the patient may be able to achieve a more satisfactory means of adapting. Nevertheless because of the chronicity of the illness and the basic deficiencies involved in personality structuring, a more complete recovery is not to be expected at this time. However, the patient may learn to make more wise choices for herself within the boundaries of her personality so that she is able to achieve a satisfactory dependent relationship if necessary which will sustain her for a long period of time.

Susanna Kaysen is an American writer best known for her memoir Girl, Interrupted, a candid account of her late-1960s stay in a psychiatric hospital that became a landmark work in modern memoir. Therapy alone may not be enough but patient may be able to adapt to a the liminal zones of her eccentric personality features, and possibly with a Eunice Murry or others to help calm and guide or and psychitary to find the most effective prescriptions.

- ➜ Schema: Involve Ed Donegan in stret fighting, abusive confrontational situations, contested nararives of events, etc., such that he is in hostile territory and conflict situations landing in arrests and fights creating basis for actions aganst Ed Donegna otherwise not founded.
- ➜ Protocol: Weaponize derelicts of the worst of skid row, homeless and mentally ill, gang members, and others to "sell me" the sight of children or underage women so I will "make kings of princess" out of them with my DNA in "gratitude" for the sight of such young females. This Gang Activity is a racketeering scheme the ARC of Nova creatred called the Family Grow Fund, allowing new Donegan family memnbers in exchange for my buying porn from them.

The Almighty Latin King and Queen Nation (ALKQN, ALKN, or LKN, also known as simply Latin Kings) is a gang active primarily in the United States. The gang was founded by Puerto Ricans in Chicago, Illinois, in 1954. The Latin Kings are one of the largest Hispanic and Latino street and prison gangs worldwide.

In the United States, the Latin Kings operate under two umbrella factions—the King Motherland Chicago (KMC) faction headquartered in Chicago, and the Bloodline faction based in New York. The KMC faction consists of 60 structured chapters operating in 158 cities in 31 U.S. states, with a membership of between 20,000 and 35,000. The Bloodline Latin Kings have a membership of 2,200 to 7,500, and operate several dozen chapters in 15 cities in 5 states. The gang also has a significant presence in the prison system.

The Latin Kings are involved in a wide variety of criminal activities, including drug dealing, assault, burglary, homicide, identity theft, and money laundering, with the gang's primary source of income deriving from the street-level distribution of narcotics.

Ed Donegan asserts recruiting corrput racketeering participants can be quite easy AND very illegal but Honey Draws Flies. This last and the third section such illegal police abuse run by fraudsters both in police and recruited by police for illegal operations. Recruits break into or illegal go into a aparments to steal, plant evidence, fabricated evidence, enable identity theft, etc., and while doing so conceal their own illegal activities against the Target.

I did NOT sign up for this, for any social services or anything else in Los Angeles California but when I was in LA I started getting emails from this web site my interracial match had been found ... for my LA California profile newly created on the site. Blacks have beed (in Texas State sanctioned acts) have had impersonators me want non-white children. This was in Texas Austin area county detention, in Texas gyms, where impersonators of me just could not stop leering at black gym hotties (multiple times) and black women jumped in front me in circuit trained, then photographed me as I was standin there waiting for my next piece of equipment they were on as I waited in an otherwise totaly empty gym. This is round the clock hate crime and rape. Blacks continue to surround me as wa with me as though we aer going down the stree together wity baby strollers ? Huh? See less
